

SOARING CRANE QIGONG LEVEL II WORKSHOP

SEPTEMBER 18TH & 19TH, 2010
Saturday 1-6 PM & Sunday, 9:00AM-5:00PM

The practice of Soaring Crane Qigong* requires a focused mind in order to direct the qi, for “where the mind goes, the qi flows”. In this two-day workshop, practitioners will deepen their practice in the Five Routines as movements are refined and the ability to calm the mind is improved.

Regarded as the highlight of the Soaring Crane Qigong system, instruction in the Standing Meditation is of primary importance in this workshop. A key component of this level of practice, the relaxed spontaneous movements of the Standing Meditation offer a unique cleansing and opening of one’s channels and acupoints. The Sitting Meditation, a special offering for practitioners of Soaring Crane Qigong, is also taught.

In additional, two Remedy Routines will provide students a means to adjust their qi. One routine is for bringing qi down from the head, and the second to focus on collecting qi into Tian-mu.

Pre-requisites for this Level II workshop are that participants have completed Level I training with a certified Level I instructor, and have since practiced the Five Routines of Soaring Crane Qigong for at least 50 hours following instruction.
